

Into-English Language Solutions

Highly Focused Into-English Translation and Localization Experience

ENLASO has over 40 years of highly focused Into-English translation and localization experience. Our Into-English translation and localization expertise encompasses the following areas:

- Product documentation
- Web sites
- Software
- Help Systems
- Marketing collateral
- Patents and other intellectual property documents
- Legal and contractual content
- Medical & Bio-technology content
- Financial services content
- Technical documentation
- Government regulations and legislative content

ENLASO's dedicated Into-English Department is your resource for the translation and localization of non-English content into English.

In today's global dependent economy, the need to gain access to business-critical information authored in languages other than English is steadily increasing. Typical mission-critical information encompasses contracts, patents, legal reviews, medical reports, financial information, web content, and more. Some of our customers are US firms with offices in other countries who need to have their documents translated for the US. Other customers are companies headquartered outside the US that need to file various documents for the US market. Into English translation involving intellectual property is a hot market today; IP attorneys, including patent applications, form an integral part of our business.

What is Into-English?

Into-English translation differs from traditional Into-Foreign translation of large scale documentation, software, and web site projects. Because the information is often very time-critical and largely for an internal, corporate audience, this service is characterized by accurate, fast-paced translation work targeted "for information" use. Turnaround time is typically shorter and overall costs are usually lower than traditional Into-Foreign translation and localization projects because less time and resources are required for production task such as file post-processing, formatting and format proofing.

Despite faster service, ENLASO focuses on highly accurate translation services. Dedicated linguists are subject matter experts in strategic areas to ensure the highest quality possible while still meeting aggressive timeline requirements.

ENLASO's dedicated Into-English Department is your best resource for capturing content that is not available in English. Whether you need to review patents or government regulations for medical devices in a strategic market, ENLASO can swiftly and accurately make such information available to you in English. The next time you must make a business decision that could benefit from critical corporate or customer data not available in English, contact ENLASO's Into-English Department to have the business intelligence you need.

Certification and Notarization Services

Many documents, translated from a foreign language into English, require certification that the translated document is a true and accurate translation of the source document. ENLASO certifies the accuracy of any translation and provides notarized certificates at no extra cost.
